OPENING THE WORLD SINCE 1878

Companies negotiate with suppliers to get the best prices.

After several meetings, we were able to reach an agreement.

We need to agree to a clear schedule before starting the work.

Let's take some time to review the report before submitting it.

The company asked to renegotiate the contract terms.

If the current plan fails, we need an alternative solution.

Can I suggest reviewing the data one more time?

We are happy to offer additional support if needed.

- Functional Language:

How about we schedule the meeting for next Tuesday?

Let's renegotiate this budget to include the unexpected costs.

SUBJECT RFP Received

Hi Alan,

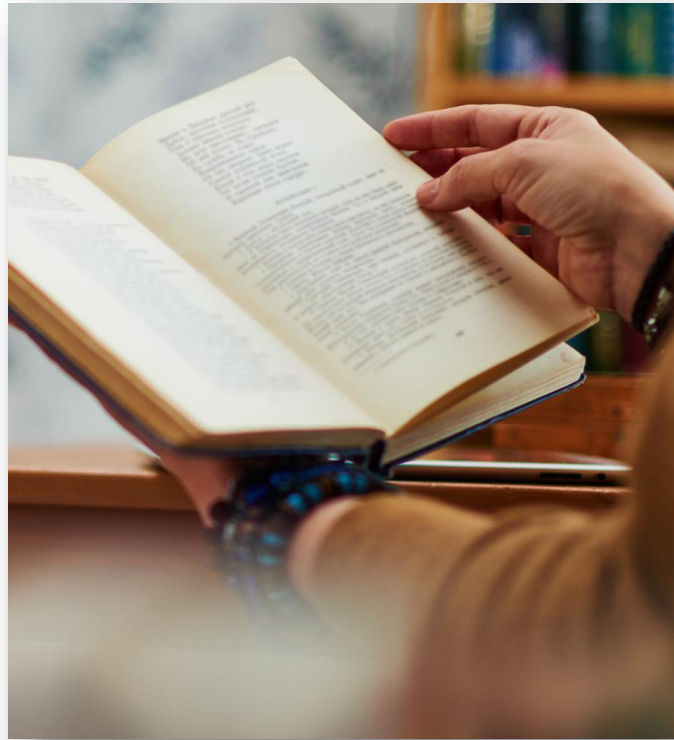

I wanted to let you know that I got your Request for Proposal, and everything looks very clear. We're already working on a couple of different proposals that we think will give your company what it needs to grow. I'd like to know if you can provide me with a contact in your procurement department so we can reach out to them regarding some of the legal aspects of the proposal. Also, can you please let me know if you would like to schedule some meetings with one of our reps to start working out details of the agreement? We look forward to working with you.

Best regards,
Linda Olsen

RE: RFP Received

Thank you for your quick response, Linda. We're really looking forward to working with you and your team on this project. I'm cc'ing Misheck from our procurement department. He'll be able to help you with any questions you have about the proposal. Regarding the meetings for the initial negotiations, we'd really like to get started with a phone call to explore some of the options that you have to offer, establishing the procedure for this project, and from there we can schedule some face-to-face meetings to negotiate the final agreement.

Please let me know if you are available for a phone call sometime next week.
