WARM-UP

Look at these two profiles and compare between them:

Profile A: Username: DesignerGuy99 No profile picture.
Bio: "I design stuff. Hire me."

Profile B: Name: Maria Lopez | UX Designer for SaaS Brands Professional headshot.
Bio: "I help SaaS companies reduce user churn by designing user-friendly interfaces.
Let's build something great together."

Discuss:

- Which designer would you hire? Why?
- What does Profile B tell you that Profile A does not?

WARM-UP

The goal for this session is to build your brand identity and market your services.

Alex: I have a client. They want a new brand. First, I need to find their niche.

Sam: Good idea. When you know the target audience, you can plan better.

Alex: Yes. I am also working on their visual identity — a new logo and a tagline.

Sam: Great. That will help your pitch.

Alex: I'm also planning a marketing campaign for my freelance work.

Sam: Nice. Who is your target audience?

Alex: Small businesses. I want better outreach, so I can reach more people.

Sam: Good. You should also show your positioning — why your service is different.

Alex: Yes, that can improve my visibility online. More people can see me.

Sam: Exactly.

Alex: I hope so! Then I can get better conversion — more people become paying clients.

Sam: And don't forget engagement — reply fast and share tips.

Alex: Yes, I want to keep clients interested.

Sam: That's how you build your brand.

VOCABULARY & EXPRESSIONS

What is the VVP Framework?

- Visuals (The "Look") → Your visual identity is the first thing people notice. It must look professional to build instant trust.
- Example: A simple, modern logo, a limited color palette (2-3 colors), and easy-to-read fonts used everywhere.

What is the VVP Framework?

- Voice (The "Sound") → Your voice is your personality in words. It should appeal to your ideal client and be consistent in all your writing.
- Example: If your target audience is corporate, use a more formal tone. If it's creative startups, be more casual and energetic.

What is the VVP Framework?

- Value (The "Promise") → This is the core of your brand. It's the specific result a client can expect from working with you.
- Example: "I don't just build websites; I build 24/7 sales machines that book clients for you while you sleep."
